Things to consider

The Cederberg is a vast and beautiful desert wilderness, and demands respect and understanding. As we will be climbing in the cooler months, and in the day time, please keep the following in mind when packing:

- Day time and evening temperatures will vary considerably, please pack for both instances.
 - Closed shoes are strongly advised to avoid splinters, bites and stings from sticks and our slithery / pinchy friends.
 - Hats are a non-negotiable. T-shirts and sun hoodies are strongly advised. Covering up exposed skin = sun protection.
 - Water is another non-negotiable, electrolytes strongly advised.
 - All meals are prepared with the best interests of the needs of the group in mind. If you have specific dietary preferences outside of medical conditions, please consider bringing your own food.

In the event of a late cancellation (within 15 days), no exceptions will be made, regardless of reason, due to the logistical complexities involved in organizing international trips.

Special Circumstances:

Injury, Sickness, or Family Emergencies

We understand that injuries, illnesses, and family emergencies are unfortunate situations that are out of your control. However, due to the significant time and resources we invest in each experience (including contracting guides, reserving accommodations, marketing, and coordinating transport logistics), last-minute cancellations create challenges that we may not be able to overcome.

While our cancellation policy is strict to maintain fairness, we recommend purchasing travel insurance to cover unforeseen medical emergencies, cancellations, or trip interruptions.

If the Operator Cancels

If we, the operator, must cancel the trip due to low enrolment, weather conditions, political instability, or any other factors beyond our control, a full refund will be provided. Alternatively, you may choose to receive credit in the form of an electronic voucher that can be used for future bookings.

Force Majeure Clause

We are not responsible for cancellations or interruptions due to unforeseeable circumstances beyond our control, such as natural disasters, government restrictions, pandemics, political instability, or other force majeure events. In these situations, we will either reschedule the trip or offer you a credit for future use. Refunds are generally not provided for force majeure events, but we will work with you to ensure a satisfactory resolution.

Illness and Contagion Policy

To prevent the spread of illness:

Do not travel if sick. Contact us immediately.

Notify staff of any symptoms. We'll isolate, test, and support accordingly.

Positive cases will be cared for off-site, with cost shared by families.

No refunds will be provided for illness-related interruptions. Travel insurance is required to cover these scenarios.

Do we need travel insurance to travel to South Africa?

We require all participants to carry medical insurance and international travel insurance while in South Africa. The specifics of such should be discussed with your insurer and should cover emergency evacuation and trip delay.

What ages are accepted?

We accept climbers from 13-18 years old, from varying backgrounds. Some of the local climbers who will be joining us from South Africa are from disadvantaged backgrounds. Climbing is unique in its ability to draw in people of varying ages and backgrounds with a common goal. These mixed-age and inter-demographical relationships foster growth, empathy and understanding far beyond the sport, and sit at the heart of our mission for TCC.

How many members from Dream Higher and the Western Cape team will be involved?

We will be working with a consistent group of Dream Higher and Western Cape team members that matches the amount of American children that join us on the trip. As we move through these initial introduction phases we will ascertain the level of interest and take it from there.

Are children allowed to join without an accompanying adult?

Yes. Our team of facilitators and guides will act as guardians and stewards during our time in South Africa. Please be aware of additional documentation required by the South African Government for minors travelling unaccompanied into the country.

Will there be consistent supervision?

Completely. We will have three facilitators present at all day time activities. During meals and down-time, two facilitators will be present. Our facilitators will be lodged with students, in separate dormitories.

What are the expectations of accompanying adults?

Accompanying adults have no expectations, besides having an enriching and meaningful experience with their children. Adults do not need to be climbers to attend, and are not expected to be present for all the planned activities. We are happy to assist in planning alternative activities and accommodations for adults, as needed.

Accommodation and food

What types of accommodation will we be staying in?

For our stay in Cape Town we have secured private rooms at the Bluebottle Guesthouse in Muizenberg.

While in Rocklands we will be staying at Eight Day Rain.

Is the trip fully catered?

Yes, the trip is fully catered. Our meals are a mixture of in-house catering by our team of facilitators and catering services by outside vendors. Participants will be asked to assist with meal-preps and clean-ups as necessary. South Africa is well-known for its high-quality fresh produce, and we prioritise nutritious, plant-based meals during our trip, although meat will be available from time to time.

Participants are encouraged to buy extra daily snacks to supplement meals and add comforts into their day. We have time aside every few days for snack shopping. We will strongly encourage fresh snacks, fruit and nuts, and discourage refined sugars and trans fats.

How much money should we bring along for snacks and curios?

This is a personal choice, but there will not be a massive need for cash while on the trip. We encourage a mindset of minimal-consumption. However, it is advisable to have rands in cash for rural stops. ATMs are available in Cape Town, and VISA and Mastercards are readily accepted.

How do we handle food allergies and dietary restrictions?

We take every precaution possible to ensure the safety and dignity of our participants. The earlier we have access to this information the better we can accommodate everyone's needs.

If there is a serious food allergy, we are happy to chat directly with guardians to assess how we best we can make arrangements regarding this. Food allergies should not be a reason that someone cannot experience the world fully.

What is WIFI and cellphone connectivity like?

While in Cape Town, WIFI is readily available at the Bluebottle guesthouse. WIFI connection in Rocklands is less stable. Facilitators and guides will have reception via local networks however and will be readily available. Alongside this, we will send out regular updates to parents during our trip.

If you would like to remain in constant contact with your child, we recommend purchasing an international e-sim for the trip. We advise participants to stay off of their cellphones while climbing, and will have dedicated time in the evenings for phone calls etc. However, all facilitators will have cellphones with them at all times and will be available for communications with guardians should it be required.

Safety

What steps have been taken to ensure safety?

Outside of our team, we work with South African Mountain Rescue and Netcare 911 to assist with any injuries or emergencies that may arise.

As additional safety measures while we are in Rocklands, we make direct contact with local doctors and ambulances in Clanwilliam (the closest town to Rocklands) and request stand-by from these sources while we are in the mountains.

It is important to note that Sport climbing (including bouldering) is a risk-controlled activity that contains elements of real risk and consequence. We take all precautions to mitigate these risks and potential accidents. However, it is important to acknowledge that the risk of injury is real.

TCC is well-equipped to mitigate risk and manage any incidents that may occur. We run safety briefings throughout the trip, and workshop climbing safety and emergency procedures as part of our program. Learning to understand and manage risk in the mountains is an important element of being an autonomous climber, and we take this education seriously.

Is South Africa safe?

South Africa is an emerging nation with a difficult past. The remnants of this are visible in the economic status of many of our citizens. The presence of crime in these conditions is inevitable.

However, we have taken all measures to ensure the utmost safety for our entire trip. Our facilitators are South African locals with a strong awareness and understanding of safety in the cities. We will travel as a group, taking car rides and conducting activities during daylight hours. While in Rocklands we do not anticipate the occurrence of any crime, because of how rural it is.

Are our guides certified?

All guiding is managed internally by a team of experienced and skilled mountain and cultural guides, outdoor educators and occupational therapists. Our entire team is certified by CATTHSETA and MDT, holding qualifications in Adventure site guiding, Bouldering, Sport Climbing and Multi-day trekking. We work exclusively with trained professionals who hold up-to-date Child Safeguarding and First aid qualifications.

Eight Day Rain

An Eco-thriving guest farm in the Cederberg

Dear guest ... we're looking forward to welcoming you as part of the very first Breathe-IN Rocklands retreats to be held on this beautiful land. As you prepare for your trip, here's a little more information about our farm, which we're excited to share with you as home base for your retreat.

Our Story

Eight Day Rain was established in 2022 by Jethro and Fi, when there was little but fynbos and a rooibos field (we adopted the evocative name of the bouldering area 8DayRain to name the farm). We've lived here since, with our dogs and a diverse cast of characters including long-term residents, dassies, birds, volunteers, bloukop koggelmanders and guests.

welcome to our mountain home!

Drone shot of the glamping tents and communal areas (July 2024)

We are 100% off-grid

This means that we run entirely off solar power, and all waste generated on the farm (including humanure) is managed on the farm.

- Pros of being on solar: Renewable energy and no loadshedding.
- Cons: There are limitations on what can be plugged in, and when. So please leave your hairdryers and Nutribullets at home.

We encourage our guests to switch off as much as possible, to get the benefit of being fully immersed in this wonderful wilderness area. We do however have internet in our communal spaces, and the MTN signal is good. There are plug points to charge your devices in the Central Space.

Our solar installation

Guests participate at key points in all of the systems that we've developed to deal with food waste, recycling, water resources and humanure that is generated on site. You'll be given an orientation when you arrive, but you can prepare for your visit by:

- Relaxing... our bucket toilets are charming, and smell only faintly of sawdust, even on the hottest days!
- Packing only naturally-derived, non-toxic and biodegradable soaps and shampoos. The water from our showers flows into our gardens.
- Limiting the single use plastic, packaging and other waste materials you bring along (e.g. pack your snacks and food into tupperware or glass where possible).
